

Microsoft Access – Field Properties

Field Properties

Field properties are where you fine tune the table. The data type provides general information about the type of data that a field is going to contain and in the properties is where you define it more exactly.